

Guidelines Research Proposal – Application Master in Latin American Studies

The research proposal should be around 2000-3000 words and must contain the following elements:

- A description of the topic and the aim of the thesis (including motivation, academic and social relevance);
- A research question, problem statement and/or hypothesis;
- A link with relevant academic literature/studies;
- An idea of your fieldwork research, including the type of data that will be collected and method(s) that will be used.

The research proposal that is handed in with the application will be used solely for the purpose of assessing the student's academic capabilities. Once the student has been admitted to the Master's programme, they can still choose a different research topic
